Run 2123

Hares: Witch' s Tit and Lost Patrol

Our roving reporter Cinders full of superlatives for the Hares cunning trail setting, not much country to work with in that narrow 4Ks down to the weir. So close that Little shit saw the hares set the home trail after the start.

Stand in TM Farmer Jones took the chalk.

San Francisco & co asked for early directions. They and all were stoped by two quick check backs one at 20 metres one at 50 metres! The pack in disarray and looking for leadership. It was to be the night of the "on backs" they all worked a treat! These clever hares had lots of tricks in their bag!

Wrapper commented those top trails were so disorienting "have we been here before?" in that scrub you could be 3 metres from another trail and not know it. The result was that the pack stayed well bunched for at least the first 20 minutes

The walkers were peeled off left on the home trail - Muff and Robbo showing a final sprint to the bucket, thirsty work this hashing!

Meanwhile our roving reporter tells us the athloids were sent on towards the weir. The trails kept them guessing all the way. Kitty at one point screaming "I give in Benny" ...ah the hares revenge ...simply they kept being turned around and passing walkers. The correct trail was always clearly marked with an 'ON ON' - there was no reason to get lost for trail.

At the weir crossing Changi believed "it can't be left"and started around the lake. Our reporter checked left and yes it was on. The hares realised that not many would know that there is a bike path crossing below the weir and that lead to the same walkers home trail.

A trail well set and enjoyed by both runners and walkers. Masterful trail setting that made maximum use of limited terrain, Well done Hares.

On On

The Magnificent 4, served Lost Patrol's Swiss Bratwurst and Fleischkaese, to which was added a fantastic Salad prepared by Ayalollah and others. Potatoes were the icing on the cake. (so to speak). Apart from the screw-up on where the line was to start, dinner was served in the Committee's usual Magnificent style. While the GM and the Hash Cash were away the Magnificent 4 decided to charge a bit less this week
